Chapter 1: Paradise Found

Arriving in Grenada

Stepping off the plane onto the tarmac of Maurice Bishop International Airport, we were greeted by a warm breeze carrying the scent of tropical flowers. As we made our way through customs and immigration, we couldn't help but notice the friendly smiles of the Grenadian officials.

Exiting the airport, we were met by our driver, a local man named Desmond, who welcomed us to Grenada with open arms. As we drove towards our hotel, Desmond regaled us with stories about the island's history, culture, and people.

The drive to our hotel, La Sagesse Nature Preserve, took us through lush green hills and along the picturesque coastline. The scenery was breathtaking, with vibrant bougainvillea blooming in abundance and the turquoise waters of the Caribbean Sea sparkling in the distance.

Upon arriving at La Sagesse, we were instantly captivated by its tranquil beauty. Our room was a charming cottage nestled amidst tropical gardens, just steps away from the pristine beach. As we settled into our new surroundings, we couldn't help but feel a sense of peace and serenity wash over us.

We spent the rest of the afternoon exploring the nature preserve, marveling at the diversity of flora and fauna. We spotted exotic birds flitting through the trees, and we even caught a glimpse of a family of monkeys swinging through the branches. As the sun began to set, we made our way back to our cottage, feeling grateful for the opportunity to experience the magic of Grenada.
